Warehouse Safety Protocol

Andino Logística S.A. | Document G06 | Date: 2026-04-20

Mandatory protective equipment

Helmets, reflective vests and safety footwear are mandatory inside the warehouse. Visitors and external carriers receive a vest and a helmet at the gatehouse and must be escorted by company staff.

Forklift traffic

Forklift traffic is prohibited in the red zone of Aisle C while trucks are being loaded. Outside that time, forklifts move at walking pace, with the blue light on and driven only by authorized operators. Pedestrians use the corridors marked in green.

Storage

- Pallets are not stacked above the height marked on each rack.
- Emergency exits and fire extinguishers must be kept clear.
- Refrigerated goods stay outside the cold room only as long as strictly necessary.

Incident reporting

Every incident, even without injuries, must be reported to the shift supervisor within the same working day. The shift supervisor completes the incident form and forwards it to Operations and HR within 24 hours. Near misses are also recorded, because they make it possible to correct the causes before anyone is injured.

Training

All warehouse staff receive a safety induction on joining and an annual refresher. Questions go to the shift supervisor, Marta Benítez, or to the Operations and warehouse extension.

Loading and unloading trucks

Before loading starts, it is verified that the truck is braked and chocked, and that the driver has left the cab and remains in the waiting area. Ramps and dock levelers are inspected at the start of each shift. Goods are distributed evenly on the platform and secured with straps before departure.

Manual handling

Staff receive instruction on posture and lifting techniques. Heavy or bulky loads are moved by two people or with mechanical equipment. Nobody may manually lift a load that exceeds what is indicated in the safety instruction for the position.

Hazardous goods and spills

Hazardous goods are stored in the marked area, with the product's safety data sheet available. In case of a spill, the area is marked off, the shift supervisor is notified immediately and the containment kit is used. The area is not entered without the corresponding protective equipment.

Refrigerated rooms

Anyone entering a refrigerated room wears thermal clothing, does not work alone and checks that the door can be opened from the inside. Continuous time spent inside is limited and alternated with tasks outside the room.

Inspections and continuous improvement

Warehouse management carries out periodic safety inspections and submits a monthly report to Operations. The results are discussed with staff to identify improvements and recognize good practices.
