Billing for the quarter	UYU 243.8 million
Change versus the previous quarter	+6%
Refrigerated segment	+11%
Last mile	-3%
New customers	9
Lost customers	2

Segment analysis

The growth of the refrigerated segment was driven by the meatpacking season and by new contracts with food distributors. The fall in last-mile is explained by lost volume from small customers and by rate competition in the metropolitan area.

Customers

The 9 new customers are mostly small and medium-sized distribution companies. The 2 losses were due to logistics reorganization decisions by the customers themselves and not to service complaints.

Outlook

The pace is expected to continue in the fourth quarter, with a focus on renewing cold-chain contracts and reviewing last-mile rates. Next report: January 2027.

Evolution by sales channel

Most of the new business came from existing customers who expanded their services, and a smaller part from direct prospecting. Annual contracts remain the basis of billing, and one-off services were concentrated in the last weeks of the quarter because of seasonal demand.

Service quality

Complaints about late deliveries decreased compared with the previous period thanks to better planning of interior routes. Customers with repeated complaints remain under follow-up, with review meetings together with Operations.

Actions of the quarter

- Renewal of cold-chain contracts with customers in the litoral region.
- Review of the last-mile proposal for the metropolitan area.
- Training of the team in the use of the CRM for proposal follow-up.

Risks and opportunities

Among the risks are the pressure on last-mile rates and the dependence on a few large customers in the refrigerated segment. Among the opportunities are the demand for reverse logistics and distribution for chains with a nationwide presence.

Owners

The report was prepared by the sales team under the leadership of the sales manager. The next report will be presented at the sales meeting in January.
